Role-play

You are outside the railway station when a stranger approaches you. You greet her and ask if you can help. She says she is new to the town and wants to find her cousin’s house. You ask if she has a map and she says no. You ask her the name of the road; you say that it is quite a long way away and not easy to find. She could hire a taxi but no bus goes that way. She says she can’t afford the taxi fare but is quite happy to walk. You tell her to follow the signs to the town centre but when she reaches the Methodist chapel she should turn left, walk for about a quarter of a mile where she will see a pub called the Black Sheep. She says she had better write the instructions down before she forgets. You continue by saying she must turn right by the pub and continue straight on along a narrow lane towards the coast and then it is still half a mile or so till she reaches the road – Old Lane. She thanks you and says she is sure she will enjoy the walk. You say at least the sun is shining and it’s mainly downhill.
