1 Nominal/verbal sentences

When you look in a grammar book you will find references to nominal and verbal sentences.

My yw lowen, ty yw lowen, ev yw lowen, hi yw lowen, ni yw lowen, hwi yw lowen, i yw lowen, my a wra prena, my a bren are all examples of nominal sentences i.e. the pronoun changes but the verb remains the same. Lowen ov vy, lowen os ta, lowen on ni h.e. are examples of the verbal sentence where the verb changes according to the subject.

2 Idioms with bos

Don't forget these useful idioms, the first two use the long form of bos and the others the short form bos dhe: yma chi nowydh dhe Alyn Alyn has (owns) a new house

bos gans: yma ki gans Brenda Brenda has a dog (with her)

bos res: Res yw dhe Jestenn mos dhe Druru Christine must go to Truro bos da gans: da yw gans Davydh mires orth an bellwolok David likes to watch the television.

bos gwell gans: Gwell yw gans Elspeth mos dhe'n cinema Elsbeth prefers to go to the cinema

bos gwell dhe: Gwell yw dhe Frank kempenna y jambour Frank had better tidy his bedroom

3 Gallos and Godhvos

My a yll lewya an karr implies I am capable (physically) of driving the car or I am allowed to drive the car. If the statement I can drive the car implies that I have learnt to drive the car then the verb godhvos should be used. My a wor lewya an karr, ty a wor h.e.

Note also the (relatively formal) expression Gonn meur ras dhis a'th lyther Thank you for your letter

4 unexpected mutations

There are a few mutations which do not follow the rules.

Dydh (g) an jydh; an keth jydh, yn jydh but an dhew dhydh. The mutation of d to j in this word occurs after a word ending in 'n' however the mutation remains when 'keth' intervenes.

Davas (b) mutates regularly to an dhavas but it may also be found as an navas

Exercise 1 Oberen 1 Use the correct mutation and write the word in place of the number Gwra devnydhya an treylyans ewn ha skrifa an ger yn le an niver.
