 nyhewer = last night haneth = tonight

dygynsete the day before yesterday de yesterday hedhyw today
 a-vorow tomorrow trenja the day after tomorrow

2 there are some expressions which are really conversation fillers

dell brederav I think

dell grysav I believe

3 to have a cold

yma anwoes warnav I have a cold (there is a cold on me)
 yth esa anwoes warnav I had a cold

4 mires orth

orth like war above also declines

war	on	orth	at
warnav	on me	orthiv	at me
warnas	on you	orthis	at you
warnodho	on him	orto	at him
warnedhi	on her	orti	at her
warnan	on us	orthyn	at us
warnowgh	on you	orthowgh	at you
warnedha	on them	orta	at them

Once again notice the endings

5 drog yw genev

This is literally bad is with me and may be taken to be the opposite of da yw genev and thus to mean I don't like, it is however generally used idiomatically to mean I'm sorry

6 the past (preterite) tense of the auxiliary verbs

The present tense of gul was given in dyskans 3 and the present tense of galloes and mynnes was given in dyskans 6. Here is the simple past (or preterite) tense.

gul	to do	galloes	to be able to	mynnes	to want to gwrug	I did	gyllis	I could	mynnis	I wanted
gwrussys	you did	gyllsys	you could	mynnsys	you wanted
gwrug	he did	gallas	he could	mynnas	he wanted
gwrug	she did	gallas	she could	mynnas	she wanted
gwrussyn	we did	gyllsyn	we could	mynnsyn	we wanted
gwrussowgh	you did	gyllsowgh	you could	mynnsowgh	you wanted
gwrussons	they did	gallsons	they could	mynnsons	they wanted

The verbs given are the forms which mean yes, to say no you need to put na in front and mutate: na wrug vy, na allas, na vynnsons

To make a statement you need the particle a: my a vynnas I wanted, ty a allas you could, hwi a wrug you did.

To make the question you need the a particle and the conjugated form of the verb: A yllis mos? Could I go? A vynnsons gweles an fylm na? Did they want to see that film? A wrussysta gweles an fylm? (this is usually A wruss'ta gweles an fylm?)

To make the negative statement or question you need ny or a ny plus the conjugated form of the verb: Ny wrussysta gorthybi an govynn. (Usually Ny wruss'ta gorthybi an govynn) You didn't answer the question A ny vynnys mos dhe'n sinema? Didn't you want to go to the cinema?

Exercise A1

Part B

In English most interrogatives start with w: what, when, where, why, but how. In Cornish most start with p: pyth, pandra, ple, p'eur, prag, but fatell.

What: (i) Pyth yw hemma? What is this?

This requires answers of the form Hemm yw ... or ... yw hemma

(ii) Pandr'a wruss'ta skrifa? What did you write?

This requires answers of the form My a wrug skrifa ...

Conventionally Pyth is used with the verb bos and Pandra with other verbs. Grammatically pandra should be used with dhe: Pandr'a wruss'ta dhe skrifa?; as should the other auxiliary verbs: Pandr'a vynn' ta dhe eva? But in speech you will often hear this 'dhe' omitted.

When: P'eur hwRuss'ta mos? When did you go?*

This requires answers of the form My a wrug mos

(What time: Py eur yw? Do not confuse with P'eur.....)

Where: Ple'ma an gorsav? Where is the station?

This requires answers of the form Yma'n gorsav ...

Why: Prag y hwRuss'ta mos ena? Why did you go there? Answers later!*

* These have not been met yet, more on this later; they both involve a 5th mutation.
